

WUA Alumnus Lloyd Mushauko Honoured in Zambia for Gender Leadership

The Women's University in Africa (WUA) community is beaming with pride following the high-profile recognition of one of our own. During the inaugural Defence and Security

Services Women Gala Dinner held on Sunday 27 March in Lusaka Zambia, the Republican Vice President of Zambia, Her Honour Mutale Nalumango, officially honoured Lloyd Mushauko with the Outstanding Male Champion Award in the leadership and gender space.

The gala, a historic first of its kind in Zambia, was organized to celebrate the strides made by women within the defence and security sectors. However, a significant highlight of the evening was the acknowledgement of the vital role played by Male Allies, men who go beyond their call of duty to dismantle barriers and create equitable environments for women.

Lloyd Mushauko is a class of 2018 Alumni with a MSc. Degree in Child Sensitive Social Policies from WUA. His recognition comes as no surprise to those familiar with his academic and professional journey. As an alumnus of the Women's University in Africa, Lloyd embodies our institution's core mission: to address gender disparity and foster equity through transformative leadership.

As an institution, we are deeply moved by this honour and the support shown by the office of the Vice President. We will continue to do our best to ensure our presence and impact are felt in every sector where gender justice is required.

To our students, alumni, and partners: thank you for believing in us and supporting our vision. When one of our own is recognized on such a prestigious stage, it is a victory for the entire WUA family and for the cause of gender equality across Africa.
